It is a capstone investment to help launch the next era of achievement, growth and impact for the entire opportunity finance industry.”

Over the course of five years, The Wachovia Foundation is making a $16.75 million grant and the MacArthur Foundation is making a $25 million low-cost, long-term loan called a program-related investment to fund the Wachovia NEXT Awards for Opportunity Finance.

ABOUT OPPORTUNITY FINANCE & CDFIs

The Wachovia Foundation, MacArthur and the Opportunity Finance Network created this awards program to spotlight and reinforce the growing – but underappreciated – role of CDFIs in the U.S. economy. Ultimately, the three partners expect more investors, policymakers, and talented young leaders will discover the innovative field of opportunity finance and help raise its scale and impact significantly.

More than 700 mission-driven banks, loan funds, credit unions, and venture funds currently serve low-income and low-wealth people and communities that some mainstream investors consider too risky or difficult to reach. CDFI financing allows entrepreneurs and nonprofits to build and preserve affordable housing, to help small businesses grow, and to develop new sites for recreation, cultural programs, schools, health clinics, child care centers and more. Many CDFIs provide mortgages, banking accounts, car loans, money transfers, and other services that help customers gain financial literacy, build savings and avoid expensive or predatory financial products.

During 2005 alone, CDFIs provided $4.3 billion in new financing which yielded: 39,151 jobs in 9,074 businesses; 55,242 units of affordable housing; 613 community facilities such as charter schools, child care and health care centers; and 138,045 low-income people opening their first bank accounts, according to the CDFI Data Project.

The capital that Boston Community Capital invests comes from socially concerned investors and donors -- individuals, religious organizations, banks, foundations and corporations.

   BCC recognizes that economic, social, and civic isolation are barriers to healthy communities, economic independence, and wealth creation. It meets these needs by providing a range of financial vehicles, services and products and by acting as investment bankers in those communities.
